AUTOMATIC DISQUALIFICATION CRITERIA

During the selection process for the Cadet, CHP, classification, each candidate will be evaluated to determine whether the candidate possesses the personal characteristics that are required for employment as a law enforcement officer. Such an evaluation requires that job-relevant inquiries be conducted to provide insight regarding the candidate's personal history. During this evaluation process, questions relating to driving, drug usage, and arrests and convictions will be asked of each candidate to help determine whether the candidate possesses the qualifications that are required to become a law enforcement officer.

The recency of an indiscretion is a critical consideration in evaluating whether a candidate has matured or learned from the experience. To ensure that all candidates are evaluated according to the same standard, automatic disqualification criteria have been established for various acts that are in direct conflict with the duties of an Officer, CHP. The following is a list of derogatory issues that may warrant automatic disqualification from the selection process for Cadet, CHP.

Drug Use: Use of any controlled substance deemed to be unlawful under the statutes of the State of California may be cause for automatic disqualification. An automatic disqualification for drug use is based primarily on the type of substance and the timeframe involved.

Misdemeanor Conviction: Conviction of a misdemeanor violation relating to driving while under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs may warrant automatic disqualification. This disqualification criterion may apply even in the case of a reduction of a charge of Driving Under the Influence of alcohol/drugs to Reckless Driving.

Felony Conviction: Any felony conviction is cause for automatic disqualification. A conviction that has been expunged and/or sealed could or may be cause for automatic disqualification.

For further information relating to automatic disqualification criteria, please contact the CHP, Cadet Hiring Unit at (916) 843-3760.
